

Dr James Hicks, Consultant Lecturer, Sotheby's Institute of Art, London

PhD, University of Hertfordshire; MA, History of Art, Goldsmiths; BA History of Art, James Madison University.

Dr James Hicks is a Consultant Lecturer at Sotheby's Institute of Art, London. His interests lie in British art history as well as modern and contemporary visual culture. At Sotheby's Institute James has lectured on the history of fine art, modern and contemporary art, and the culture of London's art fairs. In addition to his work at Sotheby's Institute, he lectures at the Tate galleries and the National Portrait Gallery. He also lectures at James Madison University and Pepperdine University on humanities and visual culture. He has contributed to such publications as Tate's Galleries Handbook.